

From the number of voters registered yesterday at New York was 77,640, making a total of 129,411, against 103,033 last year, or two days, and 145,321 in 1880.

The Nashville Review announces that Mr. Charles C. Rogers, the man who has been teaching physics and chemistry in the Post School of that city, why cannot Memphis be thus honored in her public schools?

The news from Ohio is more encouraging than that from any other State. The Republican majority is reduced to about 12,000—a gain of 16,000 on the vote of 1880, when Hoadley's majority was 116 over his Republican competitor, Foster. Ten Republicans have been elected to Congress, a gain of three, and ten Democrats, a loss of four, one district, the Tenth, being doubtful.

West Virginia in Democratic by 8000—a gain of nearly 6000 over previous majorities at State elections.

The Democrats of New York City are making very earnest efforts for a heavy majority on the 24th of November. All eyes are turned to the city, and the Democrats are to be pulling together in the harness for the success of the party. John Kelly, being conspicuous in his support. The Tammany ticket has been endorsed by Ben Butler's party and a wedge that, thus growing larger every day, threatens "the city by the sea" as the boys say. But that must assume is only a sideshow that is not to be regarded as the least detracting from the city that is the result of the party in support of Cleveland and Hendricks. The meeting held last night in proof of this. The presence of Gov. Cleveland at it and the fact that Mr. Tilden was the marked episode of a gathering of the class that betokens harmony and concentration for a national victory. The Republicans in Ohio have had this good effect, and it is as good as a sweeping victory in November.

"Boy" TAYLOR, one of the Democratic electors for the State at large, and Hawkins, a Republican elector for the State at large, will speak here to-night, and no doubt to a large audience. They will discuss the issues between the two parties, and as they are both men of some experience in public affairs may reasonably be expected to do so in an intelligent manner. Mr. Taylor makes the opinion of being one of the most humorous speakers in the State and one of the most original. His first canvass a few years ago is a memorable one and is often referred to with delight in East Tennessee, where the political traditions go back almost to colonial times. That he will maintain his well-earned reputation to-night we have no reason to doubt, and feel warranted, therefore, in assuming that he will have a "big crowd" to listen to him.

In the afternoon of Tuesday we gave some figures and facts as to the movement of property that has attracted the attention of the public. The figures show that the opinion has been expressed to one of our reporters by a man of the most exacting and accurate of the State that the movement of property in the State has been reduced to a very small amount. The figures show that the movement of property in the State has been reduced to a very small amount. The figures show that the movement of property in the State has been reduced to a very small amount.

This shows a fearful abuse of power, and calls for immediate remedy. It is a gross injustice to the owners of the property, and should be made on the ascertained value of the property, and the property should be made on the ascertained value of the property, and the property should be made on the ascertained value of the property.

The National Conference of Charities and Corrections, now in session in St. Louis, has in the eleven years of its existence accomplished a great deal of good in mitigating the sufferings of prisoners from insufficient food, clothing and bad treatment, and in directing the charities of States, municipalities and individuals in channels where the greatest amount of relief might be secured for the most resolute.

It embraces in its membership many illustrious citizens of the United States, men and women who are among the throng whose names we will not willingly let die. They are following the lead of the great men of the past, and are doing good unselfishly. That their field of endeavor is large and their work a never-ending one will be seen from the following list of names: The United States, men and women who are among the throng whose names we will not willingly let die. They are following the lead of the great men of the past, and are doing good unselfishly.

in Washington and the routine of business is proceeding as quietly as usual. A number of prominent officials are still absent from the city, however, and many clerks are already engaged at the Presidential election. Political matters, therefore, still continue to attract attention on all hands, and although there is to-day no appearance of excitement, the November election is yet manifestly the paramount subject of interest.

New York, October 15.—There were but few people at the Democratic or Republican headquarters this morning, but there was a marked difference in the feeling at the two places. At Democratic headquarters it was asserted that the news from West Virginia, Ohio and the other States is to-day no appearance of excitement, the November election is yet manifestly the paramount subject of interest.
